

A Warm Welcome From the Editor

Boy, oh boy, oh boy oh boy. We actually made it to the second issue of WAPLEworld: The hippest, hoppest, chicest, biffest, billest, semi-fiction, all-wrestling, no kid's play, run now, ask questions later, see no evil, hear no tree falling in the woods if there's no one around newsletter thing. You know what the coolest part about issue one was? Well I'll tell you.

The pictures. Yes, that's right. All those nifty pictures that really helped to tell the story. Oh, and the words were cool, too. You would have really been lost if you just had those nifty pictures with no cool words around them. Well, this month you will be seeing more nifty pictures and more cool words. Swell, huh?

Ok, the fat lady has sung, grease don't taste good, taste tastes good, I've said what I needed to say, so

Waple. The Name. The Legend. Part 2.

In the last issue, I told you the tale of one of wrestling's greatest unsung heros, the legendary Gunther VonWaple. He died enroute to his first title match in his 30 year career, leaving only his legacy and the fruits of his groin: Bill, Chet, Chic and Biff... The Wonderful Waple Brothers.

Bill, Chet, Chic and Biff were children like any other children, they played; they ran; they sung nursery rhymes until they were 12; they stripped down to thier underwear and played in the sandbox; they dressed up as Dracula, Handsel and you can stick a fork in me... 'cause I'm done.

Grettel, and Goldilocks every year, banged on stranger's doors and demanded tricks or treats... on Easter Sunday. Yes, they were like any other children, except for one thing, they had no mother. Oh, sure they had a mother, (how do you think Gunther got pregnant,) they just never knew who she was, what she looked like, if she smelled like apples, or if she, like Gunther, spoke with a lisp.

I Don't Know What To Put Here

Hi. So how are you? I'm fine, myself. I have some empty space so I'm filling it in. I know. For your pleasure, I'll list all the Waple family members, (in no particular order): Biff Waple, he wrestles; Chic Waple, he wrestles, too; Bill Waple, he tries to wrestle, Chet Waple, he used to wrestle until he got squished; Oliver P. Wapledink, ex-manager; Wally "Walla" Waplestaph, new and improved manager; Lou Waplemeyer, trainer, Harvey Wapleton, Financial Advisor, Larz Wapleton, bodyguard, and our dead dad, Gunther Von Waple.

The youngest of the four brothers was Chet. Born in 1973, he was a breech baby who came out butt-first. Since birth, Chet had always been sort of an odd-ball. He dressed in girl's dresses and played with Mr. Potato Heads... Lots of Mr. Potato Heads. At one time Chet had nearly 9 dozen Mr. Potato Heads and only two friends, his invisible friends, Mr. and Mrs. Floppybottom.

Next in line is Bill Waple. Bill is short on looks, short on wits, short on charisma and short on height. But the one thing Bill has always been big on is his shoes. Since he first started walking, he has been inflated with big shoes. Technically, (Continued last page.)

An Extra Nifty Interview With: J.C. EDWARDS Manager of Power & Precision

WW So, J.T., you wrestle, huh?
J.C. J.C., and I'm a manager.
WW Oh, you're a manager. So, who do you manage?
J.C. I manage the last greatest tag team of all time, Power and Precision.
WW I've never heard of them... Are they in GLOW?
J.C. No they're not in GLOW! You hermaphrodite! Let me tell you something...
WW Don't hit me!
J.C. You're lucky I haven't hit you yet. Just sit there and shut up and hold your little tape recorder. P&P are quite possibly the greatest two men ever formed in one unit, at one time.

WW What do they look like?
J.C. You drawing a picture? That's a stupid question.
WW Its a stupid answer. Uh, what managing style do you use?
J.C. I cheat. But, unlike that pathetic trainer the Waple Brothers have, I cheat correctly.
WW Do you like mustard?
J.C. Sometimes.
WW That's good. That's nice. Yeah, I sometimes like mustard, too. I had mustard today on my pretzel.
J.C. Shut up. You know, you're not real far from me. Just ask me a question, I have no desire to hear about your diet.

WW What else should I ask? Hmm. So, what are your future plans?
J.C. We've got our eyes on a couple [titles] right now: the WCF title, and very soon the North Georgia tag team title.
WW Do you think this Power and whatever team can take a team like the Wonderful Waple Brothers?
J.C. (Laughs like hyena)... uh, yeah. Actually, I think Kane or Buzzsaw either single or asleep could take all three of them at once. In fact, I could take all three at once.
WW What is your...
J.C. Our finishing maneuver happens to be a side Russian leg-sweep with a shoulder block.
WW Hasn't that been done to death? What's a side Russian leg-sweep?
J.C. You wanna' know what a side Russian leg-sweep is? Hold on, here they [P&P] come.
 (WW is laid out cold)
J.C. You could count... to a hundred.

LARZ LAND News From Around by Larz Wapleton

WWF: Well, it's official. The new IC Belt holder, Diesel, will be wrestling "The Excellence of Excuses," Bret Hart for the WWF Championship Belt. If I'm not mistaken, this is the first time that the Hitman has defended his belt on television since winning TWO months ago....The WWF Tag Team Belts have finally been turned over by The Quebecers to The Headshrinkers, now advised by Captain Lou Albano. "We're not the Mounties; we're also not the champs"....Yokozuna and Earthquake recently faced off in the first ever Sumo Match in the WWF. Earthquake was the winner, but it seemed pretty boring. Thank heavens for our beloved American professional wrestling....The King of the Ring tournament is finally starting to shape up. The first two brackets have been filled already, with I.R.S. facing Mabel of Men on a Mission (where's Mo?), and Razor "I got beaten by the Bad Guy" Ramon, facing certain doom against Bam Bam Bigelow....And "Rowdy" Roddy Piper will be returning to the ring to face Jerry "The King" Lawler at the King of the Ring event. I find "The King" to be very amusing, but I will enjoy seeing Roddy beat Jerry's royal butt into the mat....

WCW: Before Slamboree begins, I have a few questions. Who the hell is the Stable Stud? Who are the other two Horsemen going to be? And why hasn't Hulk Hogan returned to the ring where he belongs?...My man Ric Flair has been at it again. First, he gave Ricky "The Dragon" Steamboat ANOTHER title shot, which he didn't deserve, and then proceeded to embarrass him on WCW Saturday Night last week. Second, he agreed to reform The Four Horsemen with Arn Anderson recently, but no word yet on who the lucky two are. And finally, Col. Robert Parker offered The Nature Boy a briefcase full of cash in exchange for the WCW World Heavyweight Belt. Flair took the cash, cold-cocked Parker, and ran. (Huh huh. I said "cold.") The stage is set for Flair to go bad. Woooooo!!! ....Kevin Sullivan and Cactus Jack recently formed an alliance, even though they have hated each other for quite some time now. These two freaks of nature hope to take the Tag Team Belts from The Nasty Boys. If you thought the Chicago Streetfight was messy, just wait until Sullivan is thrown into the fray. I bet that one of these pay-per-view events, will have tag teams wrestling for the belt that don't involve Knobbs, Saggs, and Cactus Jack....And speaking of blood, how about that Bunkhouse Match? It was swell getting to see Dustin Rhodes all bloodied up like that. Too bad for Bunkhouse Buck that he has to face Dustin in the Bullrope Grudge Match. That's his specialty....And Johnny B. Badd will get his shot at the U.S. Heavyweight Belt at Slamboree. Sorry Johnny, but Stunning Steve B. Badder.

Elsewhere: Chic Waple was declared the hands-down winner in a singles match early last week when the referees discovered that his opponent had been dead for three months....Everyone thought that they had sighted The Undertaker at Rio Bravo last Wednesday, but it turned out to be Kane of that fine tag team, Power and Precision....That's all for now in Larz Land. See you at King of the Ring, suckers....

All Bow and Pay Homage To:

Diesel just kicks butt! He's big. He's a bad-ass. He gets to hang out with Shawn, (who reminds me of me when I was younger.) And he just took the IC strap from right around Razor's waist. He also made fun of Biff once. I heard it. Biff got his autograph and Diesel signed it, "Continue to wear the hood, please!" Now that's class. Next month he is going up against Bret for the World belt. And you know what? I bet he'll get it. Larz should watch this guy.

Spring Stampede Recap

Bloody.

Let me give you a list of the guys who bled during this event:

- 1. Dustin Rhodes- his head looked like a big pizza after you take all the cheese off.
- 2. Bunkhouse Buck- Not as much as Dustin, but at least he contributed.
- 3. Ravishing Rick Rude- A bit from the mouth. He bled all over

Sting's back though.

4. Cactus Jack- You couldn't see it, but he had to be bleeding internally.

5. Chic Waple- He stubbed his toe on the way back from the john.

6. Lou Waplemeyer- That damn chainsaw, again.

Overall, a great event, but Muta's starting to look like his old man.

What's Up With the Waples

April 14: Lou was arrested for selling M-80's to six and seven year olds. Harvey posted bail and Lou was released.

April 16: Biff went on a date with a beautiful model. The date ended abruptly when he tried to take her bra off and accidentally opened the blowup valve on her back and she blew through the window.

April 21: Wally and Chic were devising a master plan to beat Louie Spicolli. They later gave up, realizing they couldn't even pronounce Spicolli.

April 23: In a handicap match against The Shadow, Biff and Chic were pinned after Bill fell down and passed out while tying his shoe.

April 29: Larz learned how to dress himself.

May 4: Chet's birthday (Dead Waple brother). The Waple family remembered him with a bowl of queso at Rio Bravo, and bought a pet snake to re-enact his death.

May 9: Harvey got beat up by two lesbians for harassment. When Chic, Biff and Bill came to help, they were beat up, too.

May 12: Larz and Bill were hitting on two women when they finally realized the women were really men. Larz made tracks, and Bill got lucky.

May 16: Lou was arrested again for teaching a nine year old girl how to juggle running chainsaws.

(The Legend. Part 2. Con't)

he only wears a girl's size 5, but he insists on wearing men's size 13s. Go figure.

The Waple brother with the most horse-sense is Chic. It may be because of his horse-butt. Being the second oldest brother, really doesn't mean anything. Chic has never been one of those "go-getters", he was instead one of those "let's go get him"'s. If there's one thing that Chic was good at when he was young, it was getting beat up. Sure, he was good at running away, or playing dead, but the other kids would say something nice or offer him candy and he would come back, lulled into a false security... and get the snout beat out of him again.

The oldest of the four brothers is Biff. Born in 1969, Biff led a life of insecurity and other things. Not much is known about Biff's childhood, except that the moment Biff was born, the doctor put a mask over his head and not a sole has seen his face since, not even his brothers. The four brothers happened to be on the plane that crashed over the Sahara Desert and took Gunther's life. During the commotion, Biff was separated from his brothers and raised by a nice African family of nomads and lived in a hut. At age 7, he came with his adoptive brother, Kunta, to the United States on a foriegn exchange program. Biff was reunited with his real brothers at a gala 4th of July bash.

Finally being united, the brothers, homeless and parentless, were taken in and cared for by Betty, Gunther VonWaple's gay brother. Thus begins another chapter in the lives of "the greatest wrestling force ever assembled."
